

TREE PRESERVATION ORDER REGISTER

May 2022

Trees and woodlands form an important component of both the urban and rural landscape in West Dunbartonshire. They contribute to the general appearance and amenity of the area, and their removal can therefore have a significant impact.

The Town and County Planning (Scotland) Act 1997 gives planning authorities the power to make a tree preservation order (TPO) in respect of trees or woodlands if it is considered to be in the interest of amenity. A TPO prohibits the cutting down, uprooting, topping, lopping, wilful damage or destruction of trees without the Council's consent.

There are 51 separate TPOs in place across West Dunbartonshire, covering over 365 hectares of woodland, individual trees and groups of trees. The first TPO was confirmed in West Dunbartonshire in the 1950s by Dunbartonshire County Council. This Register lists details of all the TPOs within West Dunbartonshire, by the authority which made the Order.
